THIRTY-THIRD YEAR NO. 16.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1910

PRICE $1.00 A YEAR.

POLITICIANS AND THINGS POLITICAL.

The announcement last week by Congressman M. R. Denver that he be relieved by his friends as a candidate for another term seems only to have stirred his many admirers to more decisive action. Tuesday the congressional committee and a number of friends met in Cincinnati and demanded that Mr. Denver reconsider and become a candidate for another term and petitions were started at once in the various counties over the district. A telegram was read from General Sherwood, Congressman from Toledo, which said: "Don't let Denver decline. We want him here. Is a credit to our State. Always reliable and true." Another was read from Hon. O. E. Bradford, whose name had been mentioned in connection with the nomination which has been given me without capitulating. To have to forfeit my plans, relinquish my personal desires, and surrender my hopes of retirement, is a disappointment; but since no honorable means of escape seems to exist, I shall yield to the demands that have been made of me and submit to the action of your committee on yesterday. I deeply appreciate the confidence manifest," M. R. DENVER.

Wilmington, O., April 6, 1910. To the Republican voters of the Sixth Congressional District:—I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Representative in Congress, subject to the action of the Republican electors of the district. I have taken this action at the request of numerous members of the party, irrespective of past alliances. If nominated and elected I can not promise impossible things. Single and alone I do not expect to be able to repeal any laws or enact new ones, but I do promise that as problems present themselves, I will give my best thought to their correct solution. I stand for the "square deal" for everybody, everywhere, and on this basis I respectfully solicit your support.

Frank M. Cleveland.

Mr. I. T. Cummins is announced as a candidate for his second term as county commissioner. He has only served about six months of the first term but under the law must prepare for his customary second term. Mr. Cummins has the confidence of the public and has used good sound business judgment on all matters that have come before the present board during the short time he has served. At present there is nothing to prevent his re-election.

Mr. E. B. Lighthizer as a candidate for Sheriff before the Republican primary. Mr. Lighthizer has a large acquaintance in Xenia where he has lived for a number of years. He is a member of several orders and stands well in the community in which he lives. He asks your support at the primary.

Another entry in the race for County Commissioner is J. H. McPherson, who a number of years ago served as county Auditor. Mr. McPherson being secretary of the Board of Commissioners at that time became acquainted with the duties of the office which he aspires and will command a large vote.

"FIFTY YEARS AGO."

The following poem is sent to the Herald for publication, because at least fourteen young men from Cedarville Township, graduated from Miami University, viz: Law Bull, Riley McMillan, W. C. Jackson, Robert McMillan, Harvey Reid, Whitelaw Reid, James H. Cooper, Riley Orr, Gill Cooper, Parks Jackson, Joshua Kyle Samuel Stormont, D. C. Kyle. The last five named were members of the Class of 1860, the Semi-Centennial class of the institution. There are others from Cedarville who attended the University, but did not graduate. Cedarville people may be interested in these verses—

AN EPIC POEM.
On Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and the Semi-Centennial of class 1860. Written for the reunion of the class, June 16, 1909.

By REV. HUGH PARKS JACKSON.
I'm not a bard to sing a song,
Nor minstrel's lay attune,
And yet I'm tempted to essay,
Now in this month of June,
To write an Epic, if I can,
In which I will confine
My thoughts to "Old Miami" dear,
And the class of fifty nine;
A century has come and gone,
Since "Old Miami" grand
Opened her doors to educate
Young men from all the land;
We count them by the thousands as,
We travel to and fro,
All this has been accomplished since
Twice fifty years ago!

The Faculty were men of worth,
Hall was chief of affairs,
Elliot and Bishop occupied
The Greek and Latin chairs,
Stoddard taught philosophy,
McFarland calculus.
Swing and Killen revealed to Preps.
Things true and fabulous;
Our men try often now reverts
To the Chapel exercise,
When they upon the rostrum sat,
With mien both grave and wise;
We reverence yet their very names,
And this will ever grow,
We're thankful for their counsel given
O'er fifty years ago.

It was June eighteen fifty nine,
Diplomas were given out
To you and me, then young in years,
Twenty or thereabout;
From the hands of good old Dr. Hall
Came parchment scrolls well engraved
A testimonial of a course,
And conduct well behaved;
Thus well equipped for life abroad,
With pride we bid farewell
To "Old Miami" and her halls,
And the dear old college bell;
We fondly clasped our classmates' hands,
And said: "Good-bye!" you know,
And wished our chums success in life,
Just fifty years ago!

What shall we do? What shall we be?
Was asked by every one,
Preachers, lawyers, doctors, teachers,
Our life-work was begun;
But very soon the Civil War
Called for the brave and true,
Three donned the gray, "neath "Stars and bars"
And eight the loyal blue;
McClanburgh fell at Fredericksburgh,
Wyatt in Tennessee,
And Battle died on Shiloh's field;
Our class thus offered three;
The rest continued in the fray
Till winds of peace did blow,
Then homeward they returned again,
Near fifty years ago.

Did any one e'er dream that day,
We bid a long good-bye,
That bitter discord soon would cause
Any of us to die?
But war is dreadful when it comes,
It crushes foe and friend,
No mercy shows to any one,
It's cruel to the end!
How blest the day when peace had come,
And war had ceased to be!
The broken ties of college days
Still cling to memory,
For war between the blue and gray
In death laid classmates low,
And raged a storm through all the land,
Near fifty years ago!

Soon after eighteen fifty nine,
Death's hand was on our class,
In ten short years, eight were deceased
And laid beneath the grass;
May was the first upon death's roll,
He died in eighteen sixty,
McKinley followed in a year,
Then three in 'th' war with Dixie;
Soon after, Orr, McMillan, Craig,
Each answered death's decree,
And Dills upon an ocean voyage,
Was buried in the sea;
Four more were claimed in eighty two,
The rest are passing slow,
How few there are left of our class,
Since fifty years ago!

Way back upon Diploma day,
We numbered thirty four,
Now twenty two are in their graves,
And twelve alive,--no more!
Davies, Evans, Jackson, and Kyle,
McDonald, Morrow, Young,
Pugsley, Reynolds, Stevenson, Ure,
Thurston, Taven and one;
Now on this dear old blessed spot,
But six are here to-day,
We look each other in the face,
"You've changed!" we all can say,
And two, whose names are Joe,
We feel that we are young again,
As fifty years ago.

While at "Miami" long ago,
We passed the time in peace,
A friendship strong dwell in our hearts,
Too strong to ever cease;
These college ties death could not break,
Though years have passed away,
And there was war within the land,
Between the blue and gray;
We call a meeting here to-day,
To talk of times of old,
And are reminded life is short,
"Tis like a tale that's told!"
Fifty years a change have wrought,
Our heads are white as snow,
Our ages 'hove three score and ten,
Since fifty years ago!

How joyful thus to meet again,
And see the changes wrought,
The buildings new erected here
Upon this lovely spot,
To come again to the classic shades
Of our Alma Mater dear,
Come to talk of the good old times,
Our Semi-Centennial year;
We banquet in the dining hall,
And don the college gowns,
We pose to have our photo taken
Upon the campus grounds;
O! this Semi-Centennial year!
Sets all our hearts aglow,
And glad we are for friendships ties
Made fifty years ago!

How pleasant at this distant day,
When life is on decline
To let our memories dwell upon
The class of fifty nine!
For precious time has passed away,
Since classmates thirty four
Went out from "Old Miami's" doors
T' return again no more;
We measure time since parting then
Upon Commencement Day,
And find the space of many years,
That's swiftly passed away;
Our bark across the sea of life
Were weak and frail; you know,
We've heard the moans of muffled tides,
Since fifty years ago.

A few more years all will be gone,
Life's battles will be o'er,
The places which we once so well
Will know us thus no more;
But may our Alma Mater live,
"Miami" is her name,
May students come and bring to her
Prosperity and fame,
And may it be your constant pride
To educate indeed,
Good Presidents like Harrison,
Ambassadors like Reid;
O! Alma Mater! now farewell!
We pray that God bestow
On thee a richer blessing far
Than fifty years ago!

The Children's Home Society.

Rev. Edward H. Caylor of Columbus Ohio Field Agent of the Children's Home Society of Ohio, has been in our community for a few days this week, in the interest of that association. He does not represent a children's home, but seeks family homes for homeless children—a most worthy and noble work. This association has been seventeen years operating in the state, placing many hundreds of orphans and destitute children, and challenge the people of Ohio to show better results in any philanthropic work. The association operates from Columbus, where Dr. F. H. Darby has been State Superintendent since its organization. This work is wholly supported by private contributions, and the society has a number of patrons in our place who have at its annual call of Dr. Caylor freely contributed. The National Association in this field convenes in Columbus in June and will be an important philanthropic gathering.

THE WHEN,

Aracoe Springfield, Ohio.

HALLEY'S COMET NEARING EARTH.

With the approach of May 18, the interest in Halley Comet increases apace. The standard magazines and journals are publishing articles from the pens of the leading astronomers of the world relative to the probable effect the Comet will have upon the earth. While no two agree absolutely in all details, their surmises make very interesting reading. One thing seems sure, namely that on May 18, many of us earth beings will witness a sight the like of which has never before been seen by men, at least since men have kept a written history of events. On that day for over three hours, we shall be viewing the sun through the great blazing head of a comet.

Of a sudden our earth swinging through space at 65,000 miles per hour will plunge into the tail of Halley's comet close to the neck of it. The tail will have been whipped against us at its own speed of 105,000 miles an hour.

Thus, this globe will dive through the luminous haze at a total speed of 170,000 miles per hour, 47 miles per second, the earth entirely immersing herself in the celestial mist in less than three minutes, yet so thick is the tail at the point of perforation—600,000 miles—we shall be nearly three hours and a half passing through.

What will happen? As was before stated, no two scientists agree in detail. They are, however, practically certain there will be no harm done to any creature of the earth, save the harm which fear does. But the speculations are almost certain to be stricken with mortal terror during those three hours. For those three hours will show to men the most sublime, awe-inspiring display of heavenly fireworks this earth has witnessed since space roared with the primordial flames of creation, as the astronomers say. But the chances are that it will be nothing but "light-terrors," but harmless. For our sunlight during those 205 minutes will be filtered with the comet's head or nucleus the head will be pelting the sun and that head will have just come from a bath in the very flames of the sun. This gaseous head 61 times as big as our earth and only 1,000,000 miles away (in mere step compared even with the distance to the sun) will be boiling, fuming, exploding, blasting, in titanic convulsions of heat after its recent experience. And it is through such a lens our sunlight must come filtered for three hours and a half on May 18.

We did, indeed, have one slight experience with the tail of a comet. But it was a mere wispy of tail—just a thread at the extreme end of the tail's 24,000,000 miles of length—a hair severed the French astronomer, Liais, journeyed to Rio de Janeiro and set up his instrument.

The moments came. Suddenly Liais saw the sky turn like blood at midday. Then there was a rapid plunge into a lurid phosphorescent yellow and almost instantly the sky darkened to a coppery green, as if a tornado were approaching. And next instant, before the observer could realize it, the sun shown serenely again, the earth's minute for passing through the 3000-mile-thick hair was up, and Liais packed his instruments and went home. "We'll be in Halley's comet's tail over three hours. Will the effect be proportionately awful?"

Scientists all over the earth are warning people to be prepared for strange sights, but not to be frightened for, as the saying goes, the whole 99,000,000 miles of its tail condensed, "might be packed in a trunk."

Says Andre, director of the Lyons observatory: "You must not be astonished if it shows an aspect as strange and stranger than anything ever seen before."

What effect the adventure will have upon the earth is disputed. Comets are little understood. There are instruments which can detect their weight and instruments which partially show their composition but beyond these known facts, each scientist has a different explanation.

A recent theory is that the comet nucleus or head is simply an enormous lens, and what appear to be a tail is, in reality, only the pencil of concentrated sunlight such as proceeds from an ordinary searchlight. Outside of this pencil we can see, its length, but once in it, we could observe only an increase in the heat and brilliancy of the sunlight. Under this theory the only effect that will be noticed May 18 will be that the sunshine will fairly burn one. But in the shade it should be fairly comfortable.

If the comet's tail is of gas at least the gas is much diluted. Some observers fear the deadly cyanogen gas, which, if thick, would stifle all breathing things at once. Diluted such a gas might turn the whole the whole world very sick at its stomach for two or three hours. Some predict a display of electrical phenomenon tremendous, but harmless as the aurora borealis. Deslandres, a Frenchman says the tail is made up of cathode rays, which, touching our atmosphere, would become X-rays of great intensity. The effect of X-rays upon air is to wring the water out of it. So we may be soaked with deluges of rain during our comet bath.

Some believe the comet's tail is intensely hot. But this heat must be thinly distributed, owing to the filmy character of the tail. Moreover, the earth has an enveloping blanket of cool air to save it. The foundryman can wet his finger and plunge it safely into molten iron. The air blanket would act like a water jacket. There is a chance yet, that we won't touch the tail at all. The full observations have not yet been taken. The final calculations may show that the tail will miss the earth by a few thousand miles—a microscopic distance in space—but still enough so that we would pass the tail in blissful ignorance of its nearness. At any rate there seems little danger of any harm to come to us of the earth. The thing to do is to hold tight, don't lose courage, and keep your eyes open. For you're likely to see things you can talk about to your grandchildren.—Ex.

BOUND FOR THE FRONT.

An Incident Showing the Military Courage of the Montenegrins.

In military camps the Montenegrins probably stand at the head of European races. The best wish for a baby boy is, "May you not die in your bed," and to face death is to man or boy only a joyous game. Says W. J. Stillman in his "Autobiography":

"I have seen a man under a heavy Turkish fire deliberately leave the trenches and climb the breastwork, only to expose himself from sheer bravado."

While lying at headquarters at Orskul, awaiting the opening of the campaign in 1877, I was walking one day with the prince when a boy of sixteen or eighteen approached us, cap in hand.

"Now," said the prince, "I'll show you an interesting thing. This boy is the last of a good family. His father and brothers were all killed in the last battle, and I ordered him to go home and stay with his mother and sisters that the family might not become extinct."

The boy drew near and stopped before us, his head down, his cap in hand.

"What do you want?" asked the prince.

"I want to go back to my battalion."

"But," said the prince, "you are the last of your line, and I cannot allow a good family to be lost. You must go home and take care of your mother."

The boy began to cry bitterly.

"Will you go home quietly and stay there," said the prince, "or will you take a flogging and be allowed to fight?"

The boy thought for a moment. A flogging, he knew well, is the deepest disgrace that can befall a Montenegrin.

"Well," he broke out, "since it isn't for stealing, I'll be flogged."

"No," said the prince, "you must go home."

Then the boy broke down utterly.

"But," he cried, "I want to avenge my father and brothers!"

He went away still crying, and the prince said, "In spite of all this he will be in the next battle."

Artful Parisian Beggars.

Parisian beggars have been known to go far beyond a sham fight with a dog in the gutter for a crust. Maxime du Camp has recorded how, on an August Sunday in 1887, at an hour when the quays were crowded, a shabby man uttered a cry of despair and threw himself into the Seine near the Pont de l'Alma. He had sunk twice when a man in workmen's clothes plunged in, swam after him and effected an apparently difficult rescue. As the crowd surrounded the two on the bank the rescued one slowly came to, reproached the rescuer for saving a hopeless, workless man, who had not eaten for three days, and tried to rush off again, crying, "Let me die!" The rescuer pulled out half a franc, saying: "Take this. I shall only have to go without dinner today." And of course the crowd liberally followed suit. But the skeptical police shadowed the two, saw them count up the spoils in a tavern and presently arrested the two ex-convicts, dead drunk.—London Chronicle.

Keep Accounts.

Keeping accounts, simple in form, plain, clear and easily understood, showing amounts due to or from others, entering correctly the dates on which money is paid out or received, is the best plan to avoid disputes about money matters and relieves the memory of many unnecessary burdens. A written record of a money transaction has greater legal value in case of controversy in court than any verbal statement. The habit of keeping accounts induces economy in expenditure and inspires the habit of saving up, besides showing at all times a correct financial condition. Housekeepers, mechanics and all who handle money in the management of their personal affairs will find it most profitable to form the habit of keeping accounts.

Case Proved.

"You aver," thundered the black-browed landlady, "that you are the celebrated prima donna M'le. Squallina! Prove it and you are free! Never shall it be said that a Cuttawanda would offer an indignity to an opera soprano! It is against all the tenets of the profession!"

"But how," wailed the captive, "shall I prove my identity?"

"By singing, of course!"

"What!" shrieked the lady. "Sing in this cave! No bouquets, no enthusiastic applauders, and not a cent in the box office! Never!"

"Gentlemen," declared the bandit, "it is quite evident that this lady is what she claims to be. Escort her to the nearest village and set her free."

DEAN WESTON ON TAXATION.

Dean Weston, of the Antioch College writes the Yellow Springs News the following interesting article on "Taxation Reform":

One of the greatest obstacles in the way of any reform is a reluctance on the part of the public to concede that a reform is needed. It entails far less mental effort, energy and insight to go along in the old customary ways of doing things than it does to grasp the new situation and to advise adequate ways and means to meet the new conditions. Yet for the breaking away from the rut of custom, there would be no reform, either economic, political or religious. Though change is a condition of progress it is true that not all change is desirable, or progressive. And yet so binding upon the majority of mankind is the force of an antiquated custom, so strong is the tendency of an old custom to outlive its usefulness, that at times almost any change is a relief, and if itself an advance is at least the first condition of advance toward new and more adequate ways of meeting the changed conditions of social life. Indeed, the prevalent political corruption that is now disgracing well-nigh every state in the union has its ground in the inability of the masses to break away from old ideas, sentiments and habits of association, i. e. from the fetish of a political party. Let righteousness and uprightness of character, not the mere name of a party without true principles of action; let the determination to know to realize the best principles and practices for social well-being, not supine docility while being led to their own undoing by political bosses and corruptionists, be the inspiration about the ballot-box, and not only would there be less political corruption but there would be more of the needed legislation that is the demand of justice and equity. It is exactly these conditions that prevail so largely in matters of taxation and consequently so greatly hinder and retard movements for tax reform.

"But when reforms are instituted what policy should be pursued? Should they be made by adopting the old and new conditions; or should there be radical reform in accordance with well thought-out principles? as we have before seen it is the first of these methods that has everywhere prevailed in questions of taxation, and for the practical reasons given above it is the one most naturally adopted. It is at best, however, only a makeshift method and partakes little of the nature of reform. But even real tax reform may be made piecemeal as well as by a thorough revision and re-organization of the system. Only where the industrial development is fairly complete is the complete re-organization method most feasible and in consequence the piecemeal method is the one that has been generally adopted though several states have verged closely upon radical changes. Not so Ohio. But even where reforms are instigated no effort is made to reform the people of the merits and need of the proposed reform. If an amendment is proposed to the constitution to permit some rational act the voter gets his first information on the subject when he goes to the polls to vote, and in consequence is unable to cast an intelligent vote upon the question. This was notably the case when the exemption from taxation of city and municipal bonds was recently submitted to the people. It should be somebody's business to have these matters brought to the attention of the people and they should be discussed during political campaigns. Yet at such times they are never heard of by stump speaker or the press.

LEGISLATIVE MEASURES.
Adopting the piecemeal method, the present Ohio Legislature has before it five important tax measures, and eight or ten that are unimportant, so far as concerns a tax system. The (for our purpose) unimportant measures, pertaining to public libraries, education, township roads, care of the blind, listing of corporations, state and county roads, the distribution of the liquor tax, etc., we will pass over. The measures of importance in the way of tax reform are: The creation of a state tax commission; limitation of tax rate to one per cent; inheritance tax; exemption of mortgaged property to the extent of the mortgage; and the taxation of intangible property by means of a stamp tax.

MORTGAGES.
The last two of these measures we have already considered, objecting to the last and approving the exemption of mortgaged property. The only criticism that we would offer upon this exemption is that it would be better and wiser to exempt the mortgage, and put the whole tax upon the property in the first instance, for as we have clearly shown the tax on the mortgage is inevitably shifted to the property, and by putting the tax upon the mortgage increases the burden upon the property to the extent of the cost of shifting the tax. The mortgage would be compensated for the tax on the mortgaged value of the property by a lower rate of interest. The exemption of the property instead of the mortgage shows the prevalence and tenacity of the

This is no time of the year to advertise Overcoats, but we have a complete line in all styles and shades which we must sacrifice at less than 50c on the dollar, as they must go like the rest of our stock. Be wise and put one away for next winter. Remember, this sale starts Saturday, April 16th, 1910. Come early and get first choice. Store will be closed April 14th and 15th, to arrange stock and mark down prices. Watch for our big selling out sign in windows
